"The purpose of this study is simply to provide the information necessary for the proper interpretation of kiln-fired clay bricks found at archaeological sites. Bricks made of adobe, cement, or sand-lime are not included. Much of the emphasis has been placed on manufacturing techniques and the traces these processes leave behind, because they are a rich source of information that has been ...

Brickmaking and bricklaying were two of the Virginia colony's earliest trades. At nearby Jamestown, colonists were making bricks by 1610. Archaeologists have found kiln remains there dating to the 1630s. Colonial brickmaking often was compared to farming because of its seasonality, and to baking because of its production methods.
